

I Just Don't Have Time for Crime

By

M.A., Marriage & Family Counseling

I was created to live a successful life. I just don't have time for crime.

I have time to study and learn about careers. I just don't have time for crime.

I am intelligent, creative, energetic and valuable to this world, and I just don't have time for crime.

I have time for fun, laughter and joy but I don't have time for crime.

I have time to draw airplanes, school buses and trains. I just don't have time for crime.

I have time for gymnastics, football, lacrosse and basketball. I just don't have time for crime.

I have time for music, art and acting in plays but I don't have time for crime.

I have time to read a never ending library of books. I just don't have time for crime.

I have time to practice the xylophone, trumpet, clarinet, saxophone, violin, piano and tuba. I just don't have time for crime.

I have time for family, friends and teachers but I don't have time for crime.

My time is valuable.

My time is precious – it is more precious than diamonds and gold.

My time will never be wasted on crime.

I will practice the Ten List.

- 1. I will not start fights.
- 2. I will not trespass into people's private things or locations.
- 3. I will not take things that do not belong to me.
- 4. I will not use bad behavior or language that draws the attention of others.
- 5. I will only touch people appropriately.
- 6. I will not threaten to hurt anyone.
- 7. I will not use or have tobacco, drugs, or alcohol.
- 8. I will learn about safety and practice safety every day.
- 9. I will not destroy or damage anything that belongs to someone else.
- 10. I will not be disruptive in any school or classroom.

By practicing the Ten List I become an honorary crime fighter.

This book is dedicated to Cordell and the other children of the world who love to read.
